The story you just read is not some fictional creation. It is the true and personal testimony of a real person or a revelation that they received from God or scripture, possibly the very person who left or handed you this tract. Nothing in it was embellished or exaggerated no matter how unbelievable it sounds. Miracles are for today in spite of all the skepticism both in and out of the church and this person cares about your destiny. I suppose it beneficial to give you a little background on me before jumping into this. As a young man, somewhere around 18 years old, I came to the conclusion that there had to be more to life than what I was experiencing. Shortly after graduating in 1970 from high school at 17, I decided to experiment with Marihuana, LSD and Mescaline, all of which I liked and a few other non-psychoactive drugs of which I did not care for. This was only after a close friend and I did months of actually studying validated research on these elements so it was not just some silly whimsical idea. I was not running from anything, 'I wasn't looking to be anesthetized, but searching for truth the only way I knew how to at the time. At fifteen, even my father recognized this and in a heated argument made the statement that someday, I would be martyred for some crazy cause. Martyred maybe, crazy no. But even before this I had a few "interesting" experiences that suggested that there was something more to life than just the physical realm that surrounded us.

I continued my quest by reading things like Carlos Castaneda's series "Conversations with Don Juan" and L. Ron Hubbard's "Dianetics". I was also experimenting with transcendental meditation and astral projection. I actually attained a level of success in each of these endeavors, yet I have come to the solid conclusion that all of these are very dangerous Alice in Wonderland type rabbit trails to keep one from the finding "The Truth." I did experience certain realities in each of them and am therefore grateful for them.
